

INDIANA STATE SENTINEL.
—THE OFFICIAL GAZETTE OF THE STATE.—
Office on Illinois Street, North of Washington

By CHAPMANS & SPANN.

The State Sentinel will contain a much larger amount of reading matter, on all subjects of general interest, than any other newspaper in Indiana.

THE SEMI-WEEKLY EDITION
Is published every Wednesday and Saturday, during the session of the Legislature, three times a week, on Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays, at Four Dollars a year, payable always in advance.

THE WEEKLY EDITION
Is published every Thursday, at Two Dollars a year, always to be paid in advance.

$1 in advance will pay for six months.

$1 will pay for three copies one year.

Persons remitting $10 in advance, free of postage, shall have three copies of the Semi-Weekly one year. $2 will pay for six months. $1 will always be charged for the Tri-Weekly, and 50 cents for the Weekly, during the Legislative sessions.

ADVERTISEMENTS will be inserted three times at one dollar a square of 8 lines, and be continued at the rate of 25 cents a square for each additional insertion. Quarterly advertisements, $3. All advertisements from abroad must be accompanied by the cash; or no attention will be paid to them.

Postage must be paid.

Glorious Victory!

CITY OF CORK TAKEN.
General Starvation and the Flours of his Army completely routed.

The U. S. ship of war Lawrence, Capt. Forbes, which left Boston on the 28th March, loaded with provisions, arrived at Cork, on the 12th April, after a splendid passage of only fifteen days. As soon as the gallant ship was seen coming up the capo, the "Bell of Shannon," and of the captain's name, and the greatest excitement prevailed among the citizens. At 8 o'clock, Capt. Forbes, of the crew, landed with despatches for the Lord Lieutenant, which were forwarded to that distinguished personage immediately. Rear Admiral Sir H. Pigott quickly despatched a messenger to the ship to ascertain when hostilities would commence. The messenger had scarcely entered the cabin when he was struck in the mouth by a large powder, which came right dislocating his jaws. As soon as he recovered himself and laid wiper the grime from his lips, he was informed that the ship would fire upon the town as soon as the ship's tackle could be hoisted to bear upon the wharves and warehouses. When Sir H. Pigott was informed of the intention of Capt. Forbes, he issued immediate orders to General Starvation, to bring his troops together and form in columns upon the quays fronting the enemy. The gallant and brave Captain Forbes, seeing that no time was to be lost, quickly beat his men to arms, and soon had his ship safely moored at one of the principal wharves, when the signal was given, and the fire and main hatches were opened, and double tackles rigged in the twinkling of an eye. The commanding now commenced in good earnest, and dreadful indeed was the volley. Barrel after barrel of some of their 200 pounds, was discharged upon the Irish troops in quick success, on, which set them to expiring and prancing in such a manner, as was truly shocking to behold. At the first discharge seventy men were struck directly in the center of their broad backs, and forty-two others had their appetites carried away, so accurate and infallible was the aim of Capt. Forbes' crew. As the battle progressed, the air seemed thick with smoke from the Jameson's guns, "looking" says an eye witness, "for all the world as though there was a shower of fine wheat flour." A bombshell of carnage lodged in an old house on the quay, in which were bundled a large number of men, women and children, and bursted into a thousand fragments, scattering doughnuts, pony-cakes, and stomach pills, escaping, but every one receiving a complete belly-full. Still the battle waged, and still the Irish troops received the steady fire from the batteries of the Jameson's, with a heroism and devotion which none but such soldiers could stand under fire. Her citizens were seen running about armed with pots, kettles and pans, and soon running into the thickest of the fight, from which they would emerge after a prolonged and heroic struggle, covered with gore and carnage. Father Matthew, who was seen rallying the troops and cheering them on, was despatched a plate of buckwheat cakes at the old gentleman, which struck him just between the nose and chin, leaving a hole big enough to put a beetroot in. Sir H. Pigott himself was hit by a single projectile which completely destroyed his appetite, he deserts, arraying away three of his soldiers. In vain did General Starvation endeavor to hold his ground. Every discharge from the gallant ship caused him to quail, until at last overborne and overpowered by the incessant showers of corn, barley, beans, bread, and salt pork returned to him, when a hoarder of smoked ham came rolling from the ship, and hitting him behind, knocked him clear into the last end of the next century. This of course destroyed the tarts, and Gen. Famine, Col. Gaunt, Major Hunger, Capt. Gripes, Corporal Thin, and all their starving followers took to their heels and fled from the city, leaving our troops complete masters of the field.

Thus has corn and wheat achieved another great victory, and crowned the brows of our brave soldiers with never fading laurels. May the good time soon come when all Ireland will be overrun by such troops as Capt. Forbes carried out.—New England Washington.

Good Butter.

"Is your butter good?" said to the farmer. "Good! my wife has made butter these twenty years and I should think she ought to know how to make good butter by this time!" He was evidently offended.

"Well, let us examine it." The cover was taken off the tub; the clean white cloth, (which had been wet in brine,) rolled up, and the yellow treasure revealed. It certainly did look good.

"It tastes sweet, but very salt it is."

"We always make our butter salt to keep it from going bad."

"Let us see if the buttermilk is as well worked out as the salt is."

Some of the rolls were pressed down with the lid; the rest, sunned on the孟蒙, had four times from the cap on, to keep the butter soft. The lid was closed, and the rolls were put into a box, and left to ripen for two months. This is perfectly durable for a gardening or dairy farm.

It will be found that most persons do not care for butter can be good until the buttermilk is worked out. If that is done, you need not wait so much as to have it keep well in any place. A very little care and labor would have made this butter excellent; but lacking that little, it is only a second quality, as you shall acknowledge, when I show you a sample of good butter.

We went in and took up a roll from a crock of first rate butter. It was smooth, clear and handsome; the hand of man had not been on it from the time it had left the churn until now, all the work had been done with the ladle.

"If you get a drop of buttermilk from that butter you shall have the whole tree."

Now taste this, and you will say honestly, if you would not give a higher price for this than your own. Look at it—see how clear and transparent those minute globules are, and how intimately blended with the mass. Until all these disappear the butter will not keep long when they are ever so slightly colored by the milk."

The farmer simply remarked that there is a difference in all butter, and left to find a less critical and more ready customer.

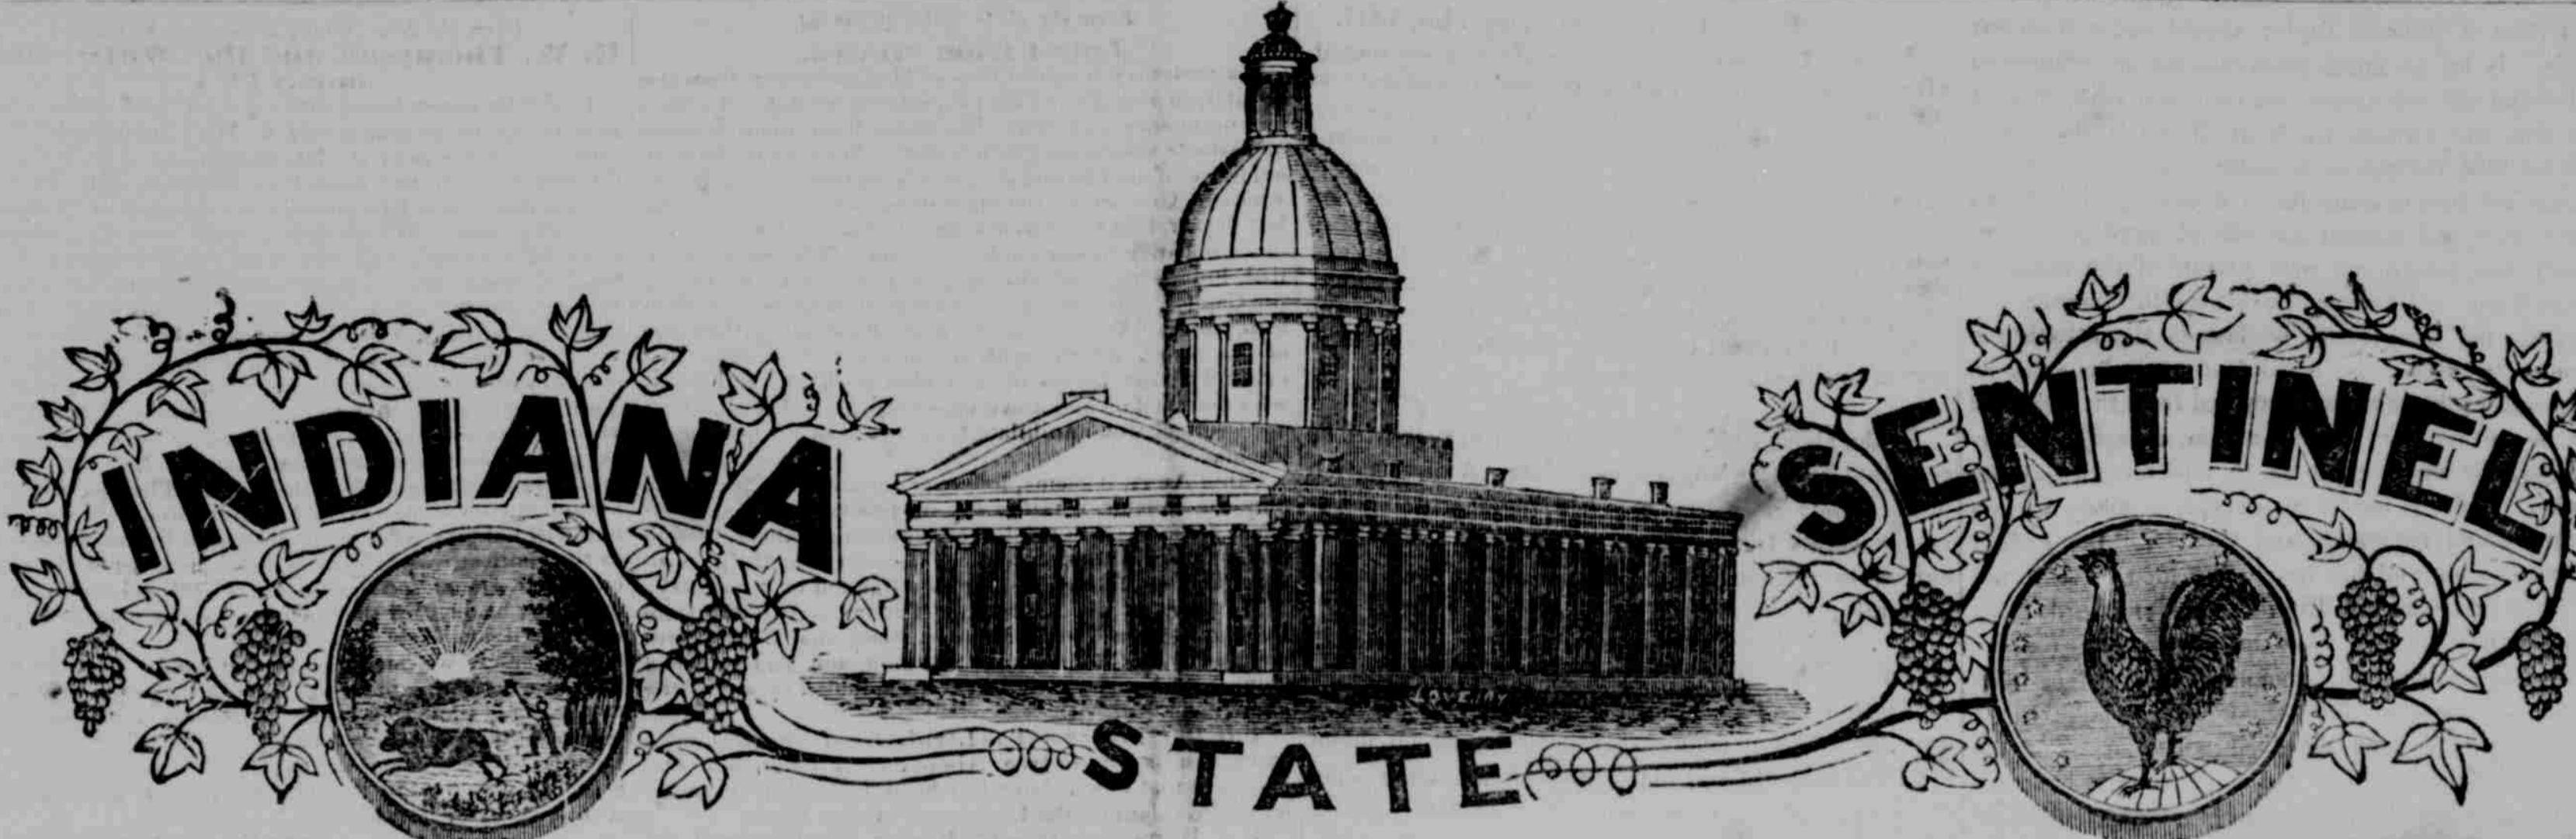

It is strange that every body loves good butter, and is willing to pay for it, our farmers' wives and daughters do not take pains to make a better article. It is the woman's fault that we have poor butter generally, and we shall hold her responsible.

It is perfectly easy to make good butter. The only requisite is care.

Good butter will always command a good price in the dullest market, while poor butter is a drug at any price.

When any of my lady readers make butter again, just let them imagine that I am to have a nice bit of bread and butter with them, and that I shall detect the least particle of milk, and that I am not fond of too much salt.—Genesee Farmer.

The anti-slavery, Peter and Calvin Finkle, convicted at Hudson N. Y., of assault and battery with intent to kill, have been sentenced to imprisonment at hard labor at Mount Pleasant for the term of three years and four months each.

Indianapolis, July 17, 1847.]

SEMI-WEEKLY.

[Volume III Number 11.

From the Paris correspondence of the Boston Atlas.

INTERESTING:

The Prince de la Meuse was before the tribunals, where an exposé of his conduct showed a catalogue of outrages à l'autorité, that one would little expect from the son of Marshal Ney. When poor Jacques Ladotte was despoiling his heart and pores to the detriment of Charles X., he secured the son of the gallant ship was seen coming up the capo, the "Bell of Shannon," and of the captain's name, and the greatest excitement prevailed among the citizens. At 8 o'clock, Capt. Forbes, of the crew, landed with despatches for the Lord Lieutenant, which were forwarded to that distinguished personage immediately. Rear Admiral Sir H. Pigott quickly despatched a messenger to the ship to ascertain when hostilities would commence. The messenger had scarcely entered the cabin when he was struck in the mouth by a large powder, which came right dislocating his jaws.

As soon as he recovered himself and laid wiper the grime from his lips, he was informed that the ship would fire upon the town as soon as the ship's tackle could be hoisted to bear upon the wharves and warehouses. When Sir H. Pigott was informed of the intention of Capt. Forbes, he issued immediate orders to General Starvation, to bring his troops together and form in columns upon the quays fronting the enemy. The gallant and brave Captain Forbes, seeing that no time was to be lost, quickly beat his men to arms, and soon had his ship safely moored at one of the principal wharves, when the signal was given, and the fire and main hatches were opened, and double tackles rigged in the twinkling of an eye. The commanding now commenced in good earnest, and dreadful indeed was the volley.

The Prince de la Meuse was before the tribunals, where an exposé of his conduct showed a catalogue of outrages à l'autorité, that one would little expect from the son of Marshal Ney. When poor Jacques Ladotte was despoiling his heart and pores to the detriment of Charles X., he secured the son of the gallant ship was seen coming up the capo, the "Bell of Shannon," and of the captain's name, and the greatest excitement prevailed among the citizens. At 8 o'clock, Capt. Forbes, of the crew, landed with despatches for the Lord Lieutenant, which were forwarded to that distinguished personage immediately. Rear Admiral Sir H. Pigott quickly despatched a messenger to the ship to ascertain when hostilities would commence. The messenger had scarcely entered the cabin when he was struck in the mouth by a large powder, which came right dislocating his jaws.

The Prince de la Meuse was before the tribunals, where an exposé of his conduct showed a catalogue of outrages à l'autorité, that one would little expect from the son of Marshal Ney. When poor Jacques Ladotte was despoiling his heart and pores to the detriment of Charles X., he secured the son of the gallant ship was seen coming up the capo, the "Bell of Shannon," and of the captain's name, and the greatest excitement prevailed among the citizens. At 8 o'clock, Capt. Forbes, of the crew, landed with despatches for the Lord Lieutenant, which were forwarded to that distinguished personage immediately. Rear Admiral Sir H. Pigott quickly despatched a messenger to the ship to ascertain when hostilities would commence. The messenger had scarcely entered the cabin when he was struck in the mouth by a large powder, which came right dislocating his jaws.

The Prince de la Meuse was before the tribunals, where an exposé of his conduct showed a catalogue of outrages à l'autorité, that one would little expect from the son of Marshal Ney. When poor Jacques Ladotte was despoiling his heart and pores to the detriment of Charles X., he secured the son of the gallant ship was seen coming up the capo, the "Bell of Shannon," and of the captain's name, and the greatest excitement prevailed among the citizens. At 8 o'clock, Capt. Forbes, of the crew, landed with despatches for the Lord Lieutenant, which were forwarded to that distinguished personage immediately. Rear Admiral Sir H. Pigott quickly despatched a messenger to the ship to ascertain when hostilities would commence. The messenger had scarcely entered the cabin when he was struck in the mouth by a large powder, which came right dislocating his jaws.

The Prince de la Meuse was before the tribunals, where an exposé of his conduct showed a catalogue of outrages à l'autorité, that one would little expect from the son of Marshal Ney. When poor Jacques Ladotte was despoiling his heart and pores to the detriment of Charles X., he secured the son of the gallant ship was seen coming up the capo, the "Bell of Shannon," and of the captain's name, and the greatest excitement prevailed among the citizens. At 8 o'clock, Capt. Forbes, of the crew, landed with despatches for the Lord Lieutenant, which were forwarded to that distinguished personage immediately. Rear Admiral Sir H. Pigott quickly despatched a messenger to the ship to ascertain when hostilities would commence. The messenger had scarcely entered the cabin when he was struck in the mouth by a large powder, which came right dislocating his jaws.

The Prince de la Meuse was before the tribunals, where an exposé of his conduct showed a catalogue of outrages à l'autorité, that one would little expect from the son of Marshal Ney. When poor Jacques Ladotte was despoiling his heart and pores to the detriment of Charles X., he secured the son of the gallant ship was seen coming up the capo, the "Bell of Shannon," and of the captain's name, and the greatest excitement prevailed among the citizens. At 8 o'clock, Capt. Forbes, of the crew, landed with despatches for the Lord Lieutenant, which were forwarded to that distinguished personage immediately. Rear Admiral Sir H. Pigott quickly despatched a messenger to the ship to ascertain when hostilities would commence. The messenger had scarcely entered the cabin when he was struck in the mouth by a large powder, which came right dislocating his jaws.

The Prince de la Meuse was before the tribunals, where an exposé of his conduct showed a catalogue of outrages à l'autorité, that one would little expect from the son of Marshal Ney. When poor Jacques Ladotte was despoiling his heart and pores to the detriment of Charles X., he secured the son of the gallant ship was seen coming up the capo, the "Bell of Shannon," and of the captain's name, and the greatest excitement prevailed among the citizens. At 8 o'clock, Capt. Forbes, of the crew, landed with despatches for the Lord Lieutenant, which were forwarded to that distinguished personage immediately. Rear Admiral Sir H. Pigott quickly despatched a messenger to the ship to ascertain when hostilities would commence. The messenger had scarcely entered the cabin when he was struck in the mouth by a large powder, which came right dislocating his jaws.

The Prince de la Meuse was before the tribunals, where an exposé of his conduct showed a catalogue of outrages à l'autorité, that one would little expect from the son of Marshal Ney. When poor Jacques Ladotte was despoiling his heart and pores to the detriment of Charles X., he secured the son of the gallant ship was seen coming up the capo, the "Bell of Shannon," and of the captain's name, and the greatest excitement prevailed among the citizens. At 8 o'clock, Capt. Forbes, of the crew, landed with despatches for the Lord Lieutenant, which were forwarded to that distinguished personage immediately. Rear Admiral Sir H. Pigott quickly despatched a messenger to the ship to ascertain when hostilities would commence. The messenger had scarcely entered the cabin when he was struck in the mouth by a large powder, which came right dislocating his jaws.

The Prince de la Meuse was before the tribunals, where an exposé of his conduct showed a catalogue of outrages à l'autorité, that one would little expect from the son of Marshal Ney. When poor Jacques Ladotte was despoiling his heart and pores to the detriment of Charles X., he secured the son of the gallant ship was seen coming up the capo, the "Bell of Shannon," and of the captain's name, and the greatest excitement prevailed among the citizens. At 8 o'clock, Capt. Forbes, of the crew, landed with despatches for the Lord Lieutenant, which were forwarded to that distinguished personage immediately. Rear Admiral Sir H. Pigott quickly despatched a messenger to the ship to ascertain when hostilities would commence. The messenger had scarcely entered the cabin when he was struck in the mouth by a large powder, which came right dislocating his jaws.

The Prince de la Meuse was before the tribunals, where an exposé of his conduct showed a catalogue of outrages à l'autorité, that one would little expect from the son of Marshal Ney. When poor Jacques Ladotte was despoiling his heart and pores to the detriment of Charles X., he secured the son of the gallant ship was seen coming up the capo, the "Bell of Shannon," and of the captain's name, and the greatest excitement prevailed among the citizens. At 8 o'clock, Capt. Forbes, of the crew, landed with despatches for the Lord Lieutenant, which were forwarded to that distinguished personage immediately. Rear Admiral Sir H. Pigott quickly despatched a messenger to the ship to ascertain when hostilities would commence. The messenger had scarcely entered the cabin when he was struck in the mouth by a large powder, which came right dislocating his jaws.

The Prince de la Meuse was before the tribunals, where an exposé of his conduct showed a catalogue of outrages à l'autorité, that one would little expect from the son of Marshal Ney. When poor Jacques Ladotte was despoiling his heart and pores to the detriment of Charles X., he secured the son of the gallant ship was seen coming up the capo, the "Bell of Shannon," and of the captain's name, and the greatest excitement prevailed among the citizens. At 8 o'clock, Capt. Forbes, of the crew, landed with despatches for the Lord Lieutenant, which were forwarded to that distinguished personage immediately. Rear Admiral Sir H. Pigott quickly despatched a messenger to the ship to ascertain when hostilities would commence. The messenger had scarcely entered the cabin when he was struck in the mouth by a large powder, which came right dislocating his jaws.

The Prince de la Meuse was before the tribunals, where an exposé of his conduct showed a catalogue of outrages à l'autorité, that one would little expect from the son of Marshal Ney. When poor Jacques Ladotte was despoiling his heart and pores to the detriment of Charles X., he secured the son of the gallant ship was seen coming up the capo, the "Bell of Shannon," and of the captain's name, and the greatest excitement prevailed among the citizens. At 8 o'clock, Capt. Forbes, of the crew, landed with despatches for the Lord Lieutenant, which were forwarded to that distinguished personage immediately. Rear Admiral Sir H. Pigott quickly despatched a messenger to the ship to ascertain when hostilities would commence. The messenger had scarcely entered the cabin when he was struck in the mouth by a large powder, which came right dislocating his jaws.

The Prince de la Meuse was before the tribunals, where an exposé of his conduct showed a catalogue of outrages à l'autorité, that one would little expect from the son of Marshal Ney. When poor Jacques Ladotte was despoiling his heart and pores to the detriment of Charles X., he secured the son of the gallant ship was seen coming up the capo, the "Bell of Shannon," and of the captain's name, and the greatest excitement prevailed among the citizens. At 8 o'clock, Capt. Forbes, of the crew, landed with despatches for the Lord Lieutenant, which were forwarded to that distinguished personage immediately. Rear Admiral Sir H. Pigott quickly despatched a messenger to the ship to ascertain when hostilities would commence. The messenger had scarcely entered the cabin when he was struck in the mouth by a large powder, which came right dislocating his jaws.

The Prince de la Meuse was before the tribunals, where an exposé of his conduct showed a catalogue of outrages à l'autorité, that one would little expect from the son of Marshal Ney. When poor Jacques Ladotte was despoiling his heart and pores to the detriment of Charles X., he secured the son of the gallant ship was seen coming up the capo, the "Bell of Shannon," and of the captain's name, and the greatest excitement prevailed among the citizens. At 8 o'clock, Capt. Forbes, of the crew, landed with despatches for the Lord Lieutenant, which were forwarded to that distinguished personage immediately. Rear Admiral Sir H. Pigott quickly despatched a messenger to the ship to ascertain when hostilities would commence. The messenger had scarcely entered the cabin when he was struck in the mouth by a large powder, which came right dislocating his jaws.

The Prince de la Meuse was before the tribunals, where an exposé of his conduct showed a catalogue of outrages à l'autorité, that one would little expect from the son of Marshal Ney. When poor Jacques Ladotte was despoiling his heart and pores to the detriment of Charles X., he secured the son of the gallant ship was seen coming up the capo, the "Bell of Shannon," and of the captain's name, and the greatest excitement prevailed among the citizens. At 8 o'clock, Capt. Forbes, of the crew, landed with despatches for the Lord Lieutenant, which were forwarded to that distinguished personage immediately. Rear Admiral Sir H. Pigott quickly despatched a messenger to the ship to ascertain when hostilities would commence. The messenger had scarcely entered the cabin when he was struck in the mouth by a large powder, which came right dislocating his jaws.

The Prince de la Meuse was before the tribunals, where an exposé of his conduct showed a catalogue of outrages à l'autorité, that one would little expect from the son of Marshal Ney. When poor Jacques Ladotte was despoiling his heart and pores to the detriment of Charles X., he secured the son of the gallant ship was seen coming up the capo, the "Bell of Shannon," and of the captain's name, and the greatest excitement prevailed among the citizens. At 8 o'clock, Capt. Forbes, of the crew, landed with despatches for the Lord Lieutenant, which were forwarded to that distinguished personage immediately. Rear Admiral Sir H. Pigott quickly despatched a messenger to the ship to ascertain when hostilities would commence. The messenger had scarcely entered the cabin when he was struck in the mouth by a large powder, which came right dislocating his jaws.

The Prince de la Meuse was before the tribunals, where an exposé of his conduct showed a catalogue of outrages à l'autorité, that one would little expect from the son of Marshal Ney. When poor Jacques Ladotte was despoiling his heart and pores to the detriment of Charles X., he secured the son of the gallant ship was seen coming up the capo, the "Bell of Shannon," and of the captain's name, and the greatest excitement prevailed among the citizens. At 8 o'clock, Capt. Forbes, of the crew, landed with despatches for the Lord Lieutenant, which were forwarded to that distinguished personage immediately. Rear Admiral Sir H. Pigott quickly despatched a messenger to the ship to ascertain when hostilities would commence. The messenger had scarcely entered the cabin when he was struck in the mouth by a large powder, which came right dislocating his jaws.

The Prince de la Meuse was before the tribunals, where an exposé of his conduct showed a catalogue of outrages à l'autorité, that one would little expect from the son of Marshal Ney. When poor Jacques Ladotte was despoiling his heart and pores to the detriment of Charles X., he secured the son of the gallant ship was seen coming up the capo, the "Bell of Shannon," and of the captain's name, and the greatest excitement prevailed among the citizens. At 8 o'clock, Capt. Forbes, of the crew, landed with despatches for the Lord Lieutenant, which were forwarded to that distinguished personage immediately. Rear Admiral Sir H. Pigott quickly despatched a messenger to the ship to ascertain when hostilities would commence. The messenger had scarcely entered the cabin when he was struck in the mouth by a large powder, which came right dislocating his jaws.

The Prince de la Meuse was before the tribunals, where an exposé of his conduct showed a catalogue of outrages à l'autorité, that one would little expect from the son of Marshal Ney. When poor Jacques Ladotte was despoiling his heart and pores to the detriment of Charles X., he secured the son of the gallant ship was seen coming up the capo, the "Bell of Shannon," and of the captain's name, and the greatest excitement prevailed among the citizens. At 8 o'clock, Capt. Forbes, of the crew, landed with despatches for the Lord Lieutenant, which were forwarded to that distinguished personage immediately. Rear Admiral Sir H. Pigott quickly despatched a messenger to the ship to ascertain when hostilities would commence. The messenger had scarcely entered the cabin when he was struck in the mouth by a large powder, which came right dislocating his jaws.

The Prince de la Meuse was before the tribunals, where an exposé of his conduct showed a catalogue of outrages à l'autorité, that one would little expect from the son of Marshal Ney. When poor Jacques Ladotte was despoiling his heart and pores to the detriment